

York-based Solarwall once again shone at the 2011 Insulation Industry Awards (NIA), scooping up two wins, receiving awards for Marketing Campaign of the Year and Website of the Year award for the industry. The awards are designed to recognise and reward success and best practice within the industry and this is the third year in a row that Solarwall has been recognised as winning class since the awards were first introduced in 2009.

The annual event was held at The Barcelo Harrogate on Thursday 1st December. Representatives from across the insulation industry attended from all cross the UK.

These awards come as yet another win for Solarwall after a double award triumph earlier in the year at the Yorkshire & Humber Microgeneration awards 2011, where Solarwall took home 'Best Business Initiative' and 'Best Commercial Installation' and are an accolade to Solarwall's 34 years in the industry.

Established in 1977, managing director Sue Lamb and her team have grown the Clifton-based company into a thriving business specialising in energy efficiency serving customers across Yorkshire, South Humberside and Teesside.

Sue Lamb, Managing Director of Solarwall, comments: "2011 has been a challenging year for the insulation industry and we are delighted to end the year on a positive note. These awards demonstrate how hard we are working to help homeowners throughout the local area save energy & money and I am looking forward to facing the challenges of a new year with the same drive and resilience."
