

Macclesfield-based Tidy Planet has partnered with Spanish energy generation specialists SUGIMAT to become the UK's exclusive distributor of their industry-leading boilers.

With 40 years' experience, SUGIMAT is a company which is globally renowned for its commitment to innovation in the thermal and power generation arena. Their waste, biomass and cogeneration boilers create energy under environmentally compliant conditions – burning either conventional or non-conventional fuels for maximum heat and minimal ecological impact.

As well as being fully bespoke, they offer an effective disposal solution for some of the most troublesome industrial wastes – including Grade C wood waste, Category 1 International Catering Waste (CAT1 ICW), sewage screenings and poultry inedibles.

With notable success in dealing with unconventional fuel sources, this brand attracted the attention of organic recycling and EfW expert Tidy Planet. The firm's extensive experience in the Waste-to-Energy sector has seen them work on projects with many large brands including Liz Earle Co., BP and DHL at London's Gatwick Airport – the latter of which not only marked the two businesses' second major project collaboration, but also cemented their future corporate relationship.
