

New European CEO aims to generate private-public real estate investment partnerships.
LONDON (April 26, 2011) -- Joe Montgomery has joined the Urban Land Institute (ULI) as its new Chief Executive for Europe with responsibilities covering the expansion of its services and membership across Europe, and increasing the collaboration between public and private sectors in real estate and city development.

He has joined ULI from the U.K. Government's Department for Communities and Local Government, where he was Director General.

Urban Land Institute (ULI) has announced the appointment of Joe Montgomery as its new Chief Executive Officer for Europe. Montgomery, who has over 20 years of experience in the real estate industry, will be responsible for overseeing ULI's operations across the European market. He will also be responsible for developing and implementing ULI's strategic vision for the region. Montgomery will be based in London and will report to ULI's President and CEO. He will be joined by a team of experienced professionals who will support him in his role. Montgomery's appointment is a significant milestone for ULI in Europe and reflects the organization's commitment to excellence and growth in the region.
