

The fifth in a series of events that began in 2005, WWEM 2012, the Water Wastewater & Environmental Monitoring event (Telford, 7/8th November 2012) will be larger than any of its predecessors and this is due in no small part to the collaborative arrangements that have been established with a number of major organisations, that now includes GAMBICA.

GAMBICA is the trade association for Instrumentation, Control, Automation and Laboratory Technology in the UK. It has a membership of over 200 companies, ranging from major multinationals to medium and small enterprises. Tim Collins is Director of the Laboratory Technology Group and says he is "delighted to become a partner of WWEM 2012; several of our members have already signed up to exhibit and I imagine that more will do so in the coming weeks."

Representatives from the Gambian Chamber of Commerce and Industry (GCCI) and the Western Women's Entrepreneurship Movement (WWEM) are seen at the opening ceremony of the WWEM 2012 expansion.